

This is a new initiative, backed by the Parish Council, to build an internet archive of historical images and information and is one of around thirty similar groups in the Cambridgeshire Community Archive Network.

You will be able to browse through our collection of local historical material, which includes photographs, old documents, and the memories of local people.

The website is designed to be interactive and anyone can make contributions. The ultimate aim is for YOU to help us build the archive, your archive. You don't have to be a current resident, maybe you've moved away but still like to keep in contact, maybe you have family living here. Remember that there will always be someone else interested in what you have to offer. We will always welcome new content.

For those with access to the internet the website is, we hope, self-explanatory and that you will be able to upload any old, or not-so-old, images. Don't forget that yesterday's events are tomorrow's history, which is why you'll even find reference to the current Covid-19 pandemic.

If you are unable, for whatever reason, to connect with the website, are struggling to upload anything, or just want more information about the project please contact the administrator or one of the editors who will do everything possible to help. If you have old photographs or documents, etc., which you think will be of interest we can even arrange to collect them from you, copy them, and return them to you. The administrator is Cllr Les Rolfe on 01954 718150 who will be able to arrange help.

We've set the website live at the earliest opportunity. That means that there are not that many items to see from day one but we do have a supply of old images which we will be uploading over the coming days and weeks and, of course, we hope to be busy adding your contributions as well.

Do come back regularly to see what's new. The most recent items uploaded will always show at the bottom of the home page which updates automatically as they are added.

You will also be able to add comments to any entry. There may be photographs where we can't fully identify everyone in them so we will always be very grateful to those who visit our site and add their comments.

We're not infallible and may even have the wrong information and you'll be able to put it right. This can be a great help to others browsing the website.
